Red Dirt Resiliency Plan | Key Messages

In Short

The Red Dirt Resiliency Plan is ACOG's regional roadmap to help Central Oklahoma communities improve infrastructure, prepare for emergencies and build a safer, more resilient region.

Three Core Messages

- Connect preparedness with investment decisions. Communities can use the plan to help with infrastructure priorities, reliable services and long-term needs.
- Plan for disruptions. The plan helps communities consider risks from extreme weather and vulnerabilities in infrastructure before disruptions happen.
- Work together on shared challenges. The plan provides a framework for regional coordination among local governments and partners.

How ACOG Helps

AGOG serves as the regional coordinator for the plan. ACOG works to bring communities and partners together, develop shared resources, identify potential funding opportunities and track progress.

The plan itself does not require a community to adopt a particular project or policy.
